MODULE 12

THE VIRAL STORY BLUEPRINT

Build episodes people discuss, share and demand a continuation from.

CREATE THE CHARACTER. DIRECT THE SCENE. BUILD THE WORLD.

Viral is not a guarantee

The goal is not to promise that you will go viral. The goal is to set up your video so people stop scrolling, understand it, feel something and respond.

The five audience questions

1. What is happening? 2. Who is this person? 3. Why does this matter? 4. What will they do? 5. What happens next?

Episode architecture

EPISODE	PURPOSE	EXAMPLE
1 - Disruption	Start with a surprise event.	A drink arrives from an unknown guest.
2 - Escalation	The character reacts, or the mystery gets bigger.	The sender still does not appear.
3 - Reveal	Show who, what or why.	The audience meets the sender.
4 - Consequence	The reveal changes the relationship or the goal.	The sender approaches the table.
5 - New question	End one storyline and open a new one.	The character recognizes him from somewhere else.

Hook types

- Unexpected delivery
- Public reaction
- A secret already in motion
- A mistake caught too late
- A status shift
- A bold line with no context

- A recognizable location with unusual action
- A person entering or leaving
- A product behaving like part of the plot
- An image that makes viewers ask if it is real

Do not copy - make it your own

Study why a hit idea worked. Then rebuild the same trick with your own character, world, location, stakes and ending. Keep the hook structure; change the creative details.

STUDY	REBUILD
Hook	What stops the scroll?
Emotion	What does the viewer feel?

STUDY	REBUILD
Familiarity	What makes the situation easy to understand right away?
Novelty	What can you change to fit your character or business?
Ownership	What image, line or ending could only come from your brand?
